RETAIL PRODUCT ANALYTICAL SERVICES

RETAIL PRODUCT ANALYTICAL SERVICES

Every day, everyone's life is influenced by retail items in one way or another. Consumers want to be able to buy safe and high-quality products. The entire manufacturing process for manufacturers, import/exporters, and retailers must comply with regulatory standards. We offer comprehensive and scientific testing services for a variety of industries to help ensure the products we use every day are safe and meet the required standards.

Our retail product analytical services include:

- 1. Packaging Testing Services
- 2. Physical and Mechanical Performance Testing Services
- 3. Stability Testing Services
- 4. Safety Assessment
- 5. Out-of-specification investigations

PACKAGING TESTING SERVICES

Packaging is a critical component of any product. It is the identity of the product, and it protects the product from damage during transportation and storage. Our packaging testing services help you ensure that your packaging meets the required standards and that it is safe for consumers. We offer a variety of packaging tests, including drop tests, leakage tests, and compression tests.

PHYSICAL AND MECHANICAL PERFORMANCE TESTING SERVICES

All products must meet certain physical and mechanical performance standards. These standards ensure that the product is safe to use and that it will function as intended. The packaging, the product itself, and the components must all be robust enough to withstand the stresses of transportation, storage, and use. With our physical and mechanical performance testing services, you can be confident that your product meets the required standards.

SAFETY ASSESSMENT

The safety of any retail product must be assessed before it is made available to consumers. Our safety assessment services help you ensure that your product is safe for consumers. The effectiveness of the product's packaging and labeling, as well as the potential for adverse effects, are all taken into account.

STABILITY TESTING SERVICES

Stability testing is essential to ensure that a product will remain safe and effective throughout its shelf life. Our stability testing services help you determine the shelf life of your product and identify any potential problems that may arise during storage. We offer a variety of stability tests, including accelerated aging tests and thermal cycling tests.

OUT-OF-SPECIFICATION INVESTIGATIONS

Sometimes, a product may not meet the required standards. In these cases, an out-of-specification investigation is necessary to determine the cause of the problem and take corrective action. Our out-of-specification investigations help you determine the root cause of the problem and take corrective action to prevent it from happening again.
